

National Learning Summit on Middle Childhood

April 22-24, 2007 – Ottawa, Ontario

National Learning Summit on Middle Childhood

Hosted by the National Alliance for Children and Youth, the purpose of the Learning Summit is to highlight work that is taking place across Canada on middle childhood: to share information and knowledge; to explore common themes and regional differences; to explore a draft policy framework; and to network and engage with others. The goal of the Learning Summit is to build knowledge and momentum for addressing issues of middle childhood that will create action at the local, provincial and national level.

Who Should Attend

Academics, researchers, practitioners, service providers, funders and policy development professionals from the public, voluntary, and corporate sectors who are interested in issues affecting children age 6-12. Space has been reserved for up to 300 participants to attend from across the country on a first come first served basis.

Invited Plenary Speakers

A series of distinguished guest speakers will provide overviews for all Summit participants of the latest research, knowledge, and trends affecting children age 6-12 in Canada and from an international perspective.

Breakout Session Offerings

A choice of six workshop topics are available for each of four breakout sessions designed to explore overarching themes in more detail and encourage interactive discussions around specific research, policy implications, and successful practices in program and service delivery.

Forums for Kids and Parents

A "Kids Speak Out" Forum and "Parents Talk Back" Forum are both planned for Sunday afternoon in conjunction with the Learning Summit. To learn more, see insert included in this registration package.

Networking Opportunity

In addition to ongoing networking throughout the Learning Summit, additional sessions will be organized on suggested topics and questions on Monday from 4-5 pm. Please indicate your suggestions on the registration form.

Registration Fee to attend the Learning Summit

The registration fee (includes meals) is $425 ($395 for NACY members and affiliates). Complete the registration form along with your breakout session selections and mail or e-mail to the National Alliance for Children and Youth no later than Friday 13 April.

Invited Speakers

The Middle Childhood Initiative is a project of the National Alliance for Children and Youth to explore issues affecting children ages 6-12 in Canada. Funded by the Social Development Community Partnerships Program of HRSDC, the Middle Childhood Initiative is a pan-Canadian effort involving participants from across the country to promote greater understanding of the complexity and inter-relatedness of issues affecting children aged 6 to 12 and their families through research, the development of policy briefs, community consultations, and developing a policy framework for Middle Childhood.

Janis Douglas, Chair of the Middle Childhood Initiative Working Group (and Manager, Capacity Development and Community Affairs, Boys & Girls Clubs of Canada) and Larry Gemmel, Executive Director of the National Alliance for Children and Youth, will set the stage for the Learning Summit by describing findings from our research and consultations and the proposed Policy Framework for Middle Childhood linking families, schools, and communities.

Landon Pearson is a former Senator and Adviser on Children's Rights to the Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs. She is currently the Director of the Landon Pearson Resource Centre for the Study of Childhood and Children's Rights at Carleton University. Throughout her career, she has dedicated her life to the health and well-being of children.

Former Senator Pearson will speak to the importance of a rights based approach to issues of Middle Childhood, including the importance of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child, as well as Canada's progress in setting goals for children and addressing the UN Millennium Goals.

Bob Yates, Yates, Thorn & Associates Consulting Services in Victoria, B.C. Trained as a professional planner in the United Kingdom, Mr. Yates has a strong background in both management and planning. Prior to developing his consulting business, he was a professional planner in two of the largest school districts in Vancouver and Victoria.

We have knowledge and success stories, but how do we move to action and help to create integrated policies at all levels of government to support school age children? Drawing on presentations and workshops at the Learning Summit, Mr. Yates will build on his experience in the Lower Mainland to suggest policy implications and propose how we can move forward collectively to create an "Agenda for Middle Childhood".

Arlene Perly-Rae has been actively involved in public life for many years, especially in areas pertaining to children such as storytelling, literacy and child poverty. She wrote a regular Children's Books column in the Toronto Star for eight years, as well as a number of freelance pieces for various publications including the Globe and Mail, Quill and Quire, Indigo Online and Macleans. Her award-winning book, Everybody's Favourites (Penguin, 1997), is a guide to the best and most imaginative books available to young people today. She is currently working directly with an elementary school in Toronto to establish a lunchtime reading program. She is on the steering committee for the Campaign Against Child Poverty and serves as a board member of World Literacy of Canada and of McClelland and Stewart.

As a Champion for the Toronto Middle Childhood Matters Coalition, Ms. Perly-Rae will speak to the importance of Middle Childhood and the need for leadership from community-based coalitions.

Veronica Lacey is President & CEO of The Learning Partnership, a national not-for-profit organization developing partnerships that strengthen public education in Canada.

For the past thirty years, Veronica has been a major player in the Canadian and International educational community. From her start in the classroom, through ever increasingly responsible roles of Principal, Superintendent, Director of Education and lastly Secretary Treasurer of the North York Board of Education, Ms. Lacey has been involved in leading edge innovative programs, major reform initiatives and community engagement both nationally and internationally, working in Europe, Asia and Latin America. She was a former Deputy Minister of Education and Training for the province of Ontario. Most recently, Veronica has been a Senior Fellow at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education, University of Toronto in the area of Public Policy and International Studies.

Ms Lacey has served on numerous provincial and national boards including the National Information Highways Advisory Council, the Canadian Council on Learning and Women's College Hospital in Toronto. For her achievements in education, she has been granted an Honorary doctorate by Brock University and has also been widely recognized by the YWCA as a Woman of Distinction, and by the University of Toronto as a Distinguished Educator.

Ms. Lacey will speak to the demographic changes in Canada and their impact on the public education system.

Invited Speakers

Verda Petry is a member of the Health Council of Canada and former Chancellor for the University of Regina. Originally from Melfort, she enjoyed a teaching career that spanned over 42 years. She served with the Saskatchewan Teachers' Federation and the Regina Public School Teachers' Association. Recipient of many awards, she continues to actively work with the Health Council and seniors' organizations in Saskatchewan.

Ms. Petry will provide an overview of "Their Future is Now: Healthy Choices for Canada's Children & Youth". The Health Council of Canada report from June 2006 highlights the inequalities that continue to threaten child and youth health, reinforces what we know about how to improve child health, and challenges governments and communities to put that knowledge into action. The first of nine National Health goals for Canada is to have "children reach their full potential, growing up happy, healthy, confident and secure" - Yet not all children and youth in our country have that opportunity.

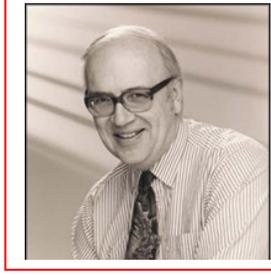

Kimberly Schonert-Reichl is Associate Professor, Department of Educational and Counselling Psychology and Special Education at the University of British Columbia.

Dr. Schonert-Reichl will provide an overview and results of a study that was undertaken by UBC and United Way of the Lower Mainland on out of school time of school aged children and their social and emotional well-being. This research has national implications and provides clear evidence for the importance of community activities in supporting the developmental needs of children age 6-12.

Wayne Hammond is Vice President & Executive Director of Resiliency Canada, a Calgary-based not-for-profit organization dedicated to advancing the well-being of children, youth and their families by generating knowledge about and the ability to assess the resiliency factors and developmental strengths that are essential to the well-being of individuals and their communities.

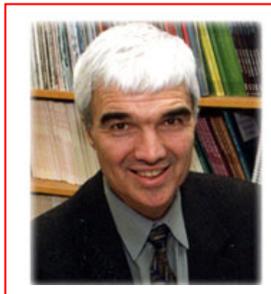

Dr. Hammond will describe a model of resiliency as it relates to children age 6-12 and discuss some of the research which clearly demonstrates how this approach can provide insight into increasing the capacity of individuals to cope with adversity. By supporting and nurturing "protective factors", we can build developmental strengths to offset and overcome "risk factors".

John Abbott is President of The 21st Learning Initiative, which is dedicated to exploring human learning and how it can be further facilitated by communities around the world. Working with various people throughout 12 countries, the Initiative issued a Policy Paper on the strategic and resource implications of a new model of learning. His latest book is "The Unfinished Revolution" which he co-authored with Terry Ryan. Mr. Abbott works with the Canadian Council on Learning to advance this work in Canada

Mr. Abbott will speak to new understanding and insight about the brain, human intelligence and human memory in order to better understand human learning and the strategic and resource implications of a new model of learning and how it can be further facilitated by communities.

J. Douglas Willms is a Professor and Director of the Canadian Research Institute for Social Policy at the University of New Brunswick (UNB). He holds the Canada Research Chair in Human Development at UNB and is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada and Research Fellow of the Canadian Institute for Advanced Research. Dr.

Willms is the editor of Vulnerable Children: Findings from Canada's National Longitudinal Survey of Children and Youth, (University of Alberta Press, 2002) which received the Canadian Policy Research Award in 2002, the author of Monitoring School Performance: A Guide for Educators (Falmer Press, 1992), and the co-editor of Schools, Classrooms, and Pupils: International Studies of Schooling from a Multilevel Perspective (Academic Press, 1991).

Dr. Willms will speak about vulnerability, social policy development in Canada and from an international perspective, and comment on policy implications for middle childhood.

Jane Jenson, Ph.D., FRSC, is Professor of Political Science and Director of the Université de Montréal / McGill University Institute of European Studies. She has been the Director of the Family Network of Canadian Policy Research Networks and the Editor of Lien social et politiques - RIAC, a franco-Quebec social policy journal, and has been a Visiting Professor at a number of European universities and at Harvard University, where she held the Mackenzie King Chair in Canadian Studies.

Middle Childhood Initiative

National Alliance for Children and Youth

The Middle Childhood Initiative

Through funding from the Government of Canada's Social Development Community Partnerships Program, the Middle Childhood Initiative was created to identify and promote comprehensive policy options for school-aged children 6 to 12 and their families and to foster Pan-Canadian alliances and learning networks with specific emphasis on engaging regional and local groups working with children and their families.

Specific objectives for the Middle Childhood Initiative included:

- An analytical/literature review paper on children aged 6 to 12
- An issues paper to stimulate discussion on children aged 6 to 12
- A series of "Policy Briefs" on identified strategic issues unique to children aged 6 to 12
- A "Policy Framework" and recommendations

These documents and findings were then explored further through a series of comprehensive policy consultations in a regional context to engage national, provincial, regional/local networks in discussing emerging issues and identifying policy initiatives unique to children 6 to 12 and their families.

Middle Childhood

The well-being of children in middle childhood is determined by complex interactions between personal and developmental characteristics, social and economic factors, and physical environments. An ecological approach to children's development and well-being explains that children are affected by the environments within which they live and grow. Research in human development has clearly demonstrated that children are affected by a wide variety of family, neighbourhood, community, and broader social influences.

Communities in Eastern Ontario, after identifying gaps in services, programs and policies for children in their middle years, developed a framework to identify developmental assets and needs for middle childhood. This framework – outlined in Middle Childhood Matters: A Framework to Promote Healthy Development of Children 6 to 12 – focuses on four key elements of healthy development – meeting fundamental needs; stable and nurturing relationships; opportunities to develop competencies; and safe and caring environments, and was used as the basis for our further exploration of issues and policy implications.

These elements of healthy development are influenced by the three major environments that children are surrounded by:

- Families – Families continue to be the major influence. Nurturing, supportive families and positive, consistent parenting styles have been demonstrated to have a strong influence on healthy child development. Furthermore, family income, and social and educational status and employment experience all influence children's development.
- Schools - The transition to middle childhood is marked by entry into formal education – so the school now becomes a major influencing factor in their lives.

- Communities - These children begin to reach out to other community resources. Participation in recreation, arts, club activities and playing or 'hanging around' with their peers, all begin to play an increasingly important role in their lives. Families continue to rely on community resources to share in providing care and supervision when children are not in school. Middle childhood is that period in life when the child leaves the security of his or her family and independently enters the external world.

Issues affecting the well-being of Canadian children aged 6 to 12

There is general agreement in Canadian literature now that the middle years are significant. Children in the middle years comprise a large number of our children and youth – there are nearly three million children in Canada between the ages of 6 and 12. They represent the diversity of the Canadian population. Developmentally, this is a time of significant emotional, social, cognitive and physical development. These children are laying down the building blocks for future well-being and participation in society.

“Kids Speak Out” Forum

Sunday, April 22, 2007 – Ottawa, Ontario

- Purpose: The National Alliance for Children and Youth is hosting a National Learning Summit on Middle Childhood from April 22-24, 2007 in Ottawa to highlight work that is taking place across Canada in support of children age 6-12: to share information and knowledge; to explore common themes and regional differences; to explore a draft policy framework; and to network and engage with others. In conjunction with the Learning Summit, the “Kids Speak Out” forum is an opportunity to hear directly from the voices of children age 6-12 about experiences and issues that concerns them at home, at school, and in the community. This will be of great interest to those attending the Learning Summit who works directly and indirectly with children from across the country – practitioners, researchers, policy makers, academics, service providers, and funders.
- Format: Children aged 6 to 12 will gather in a theatre setting and interact with one another to discuss issues that they encounter on an every day basis. A “talk” show format will be utilized with skilled facilitators to ask questions and help the children to describe their experiences. In addition, the children can participate in a “Kids Speak Out” video that will be used during the conference and to increase awareness of middle childhood; participate in hands-on painting of an Art Miles mural promoting peace; enjoy some entertainment; and join in the official welcome reception for the Learning Summit.
- Participants: Children age 6 to 12 accompanied by an adult to the Forum are invited to participate. We anticipate 40-60 children. In addition, adults and Learning Summit participants are invited to participate in this Forum as an audience member (up to 150 seats are available) or to attend the concurrent “Parents Talk Back” Forum (see over) as a participant.
- Time: 3:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.
- Location: Hampton Inn Ottawa Conference Centre
Off Highway 417 at the Vanier Parkway / Riverside Drive Exit (Exit #117)
200 Conventry Road
Telephone: (613) 741-2300
Room: 201
- Program:
- | | |
|------------------|---|
| 3:30 – 5:00 p.m. | “Kids Speak Out” Forum |
| 5:00 p.m. | Kids Forum Reception (cookies and juice) |
| 5:00 – 6:00 p.m. | Entertainment and Mural Painting |
| 6:00 p.m. | Learning Summit Welcome Reception and Opening Remarks |
| 6:30 p.m. | Kids Forum Ends |
| 6:30 – 7:30 p.m. | Learning Summit Networking Opportunity (cash bar) |
- Facilitators: David Millen, Executive Director, Child and Youth Friendly Ottawa and Darcy Santor, Professor, School of Psychology, University of Ottawa, and Senior Research Scientist at the Provincial Centre of Excellence in Child and Youth Mental Health at CHEO.
- To Register: To register, send the name(s) of the child(ren) and organization or adult who will accompany the child(ren) to the Forum by e-mail to the National Alliance for Children and Youth at info@nationalchildrensalliance.com.

If you have any questions, please give us a call at (613) 560-5843.

“Parents Talk Back” Forum

Sunday, April 22, 2007 – Ottawa, Ontario

Purpose: The National Alliance for Children and Youth is hosting a National Learning Summit on Middle Childhood from April 22-24, 2007 in Ottawa to highlight work that is taking place across Canada in support of children age 6-12: to share information and knowledge; to explore common themes and regional differences; to explore a draft policy framework; and to network and engage with others.

In conjunction with the Learning Summit, a “Parents Talk Back”^{*} forum will be held to provide interested parents and Summit participants with an overview of the Middle Childhood Initiative and the issues affecting children age 6-12. This will be an opportunity to hear from parents of children age 6-12 about their experiences and challenges.

Format: An overview of the Middle Childhood Initiative will be presented exploring the issues identified through our research and consultations. Examples of programs, services, and models to support children age 6 to 12 and their families will be discussed. Parents will have the opportunity to make comments, relate their own experiences, and pose questions to a panel.

Participants: Parents accompanying their children to the “Kids Speak Out” Forum and participants attending the Learning Summit are invited to participate. Parents and children are then invited to the Learning Summit Welcome Reception.

Time: 3:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Location: Hampton Inn Ottawa Conference Centre
Off Highway 417 at the Vanier Parkway / Riverside Drive Exit (Exit #117)
200 Conventry Road
Telephone: (613) 741-2300
Room: 210

Program:

|------------------|--|
| 3:30 – 5:00 p.m. | “Parents Talk Back” Forum (concurrent to “Kids Speak Out” Forum) |
| 5:00 – 6:00 p.m. | Join the Kids Forum Reception (cookies and juice) |
| 6:00 p.m. | Learning Summit Welcome Reception and Opening Remarks |
| 6:30 p.m. | Parents and Kids Forum Ends |
| 6:30 – 7:30 p.m. | Learning Summit Networking Opportunity (cash bar) |

Facilitators: A panel of professionals involved in research and services for children will host the Forum.

To Register: If you are attending the Learning Summit, complete the registration form. If you are a parent and you are accompanying your child(ren) to the Kids Forum, see “Kids Speak Out” Forum insert on how to register.

If you have any questions, please give us a call at (613) 560-5843 or e-mail to info@nationalchildrensalliance.com.

^{*} “Parents Talk Back” is our tongue in cheek name for the Forum, which is designed to provide a sympathetic ear for parents and their concerns.
